Our flexible energy options always mean with you to increase your energy efficiency and reduce surprises. Problems related to power delivery should still be directed to your local utility company. Once purchased, they then resell the gas to their customers to meet their natural gas needs. At this arm with the information to make the best energy decisions for your home or your business. FAQSWho do you call if your power goes off? A For any maintenance problems with the power supply, you should call your local utility company. An alternative gas supplier, such as Nordic Energy, cannot rely on this kind of control. They are responsible for ensuring that: Both safe and operational regardless of whom you choose to supply natural gas or electricity. "Who should call if there is a billing problem?" It depends. We publish a weekly gas outlook so we can look at the same market intelligence we do, including whether energy prices are going up or down. In this case, join the local natural gas utility company even if you use an alternative gas supplier. An alternative gas supplier, however, is responsible for the purchase and supply of natural gas. While many people choose to stick with their utility companies as a supplier and energy provider, others have decided to go with an alternative gas provider (AGS) or alternative retail electricity provider (ARES). They own and operate the systems that supply natural gas to homes, businesses and other buildings in the area. However, Nordic Energy is the leader of the package thanks to our experience, innovation and customer focus. Instead, they need to innovate through competitive pricing, superior customer service and new product offerings to attract customers. Basically, they are responsible for the infrastructure behind power distribution in your local area. So, your natural gas utility will be to read your gas meter and solve maintenance problems. This means that we often buy energy as the lowest market cost available. Our experience has put us at the forefront of the gas selection movement. The alternative gas supplier should answer any questions on energy supply. In addition, residential customers should still expect to receive only one bill for their energy use. Why choose us when it comes to alternative energy suppliers in Michigan, you have many choices. This means that as the market changes, so does the cost of energy.
